He will look out of the window & not say anything - or at the other people in the restaurant... & he does not stare but looks at them with a calm brow -

I am wearing a frock & curtsey to the lady assistant taking my coat & hat for the clothes-stand- C

Colonel ANDRE MALRAUX is getting a taste for this-even when we rise in the DAWN-

He demands the curtsey when I am 24 years old -

He has very delicate wrists & uses his hands nicely

He looks up in thoughtful mood saying quietly " it would be wise to remind Mary Gordon your grandmother that she should tell Harry & his friends NOT to go to the War in Spain- it is too late

" He says he thinks he has her understand this matter ... & she was never in agreement with young men going to fight - but sometimes you had to make a stand-

she agreed with him in their conversations -

That a stand has been made against tyranny I doth follow.

Colonel Andre Malraux then tells me to get on & eat & go to my own thoughts- for he has his - He has his tiny notebook on the table - HE IS STUDYING PEOPLE... he may call that evening for an hour with Mary Gordon I know-
